Is it even possible to be an ‘activist’ and a ‘researcher’ at the same time? How should one define the politics of activist research, and then embrace it in everyday intellectual praxis? And why should we bother? Join us to discuss the basis of Lancione’s work and experiences through urban margins across Europe.